

「Methods of Measurement on Cable Distribution Equipment for Home Use (3.2GHz)」

【scope】

This temporary standard is applied to the equipment which is used for the system in accordance with a television receiving system and this that the number of the terminal which receives a television broadcast uses it to small-scale 3224MHz from several to ten and several. But, it's possible to choose each measurement item according to the need in case of measurement.

This temporary standard is applied to the equipments for small-scale television receiving systems with from a few to 10 or more terminals and using frequency up to 3224MHz and the equivalent systems. However, in measuring, each measurement items may be selected if necessary.